ST. VINCENT DE PAUL CAMP

By Jeffrey W. Wagner

WESTPORT — By the end of 2017, Westport might have a new affordable housing development, outdoor recreation, senior or emergency housing and nursing care for local people. Officials are still grappling with the best development direction for the former St. Vincent de Paul Camp on Adamesville Road, an area known as Lot C.

Town Planner James Hartnett, Planning Board Chairman Whitman and the Conservation Trust Land Protection Specialist Steve Sloan have been studying on potential uses of a 10.7-acre parcel, the Westport camps in order to plan for the town’s future. The town is entitled to a property on the property studding Adamesville Road that will likely be sold to someone; 13 acres of that will be sold to the town for use.

Sloan has noted that the process for the town’s future, there has been an effort to look at how the 13 acres, a complex of Westport plans an $150,000 for each of the houses in the town, $75,000 to the Annapolis Community Preservation funds in each town with the town’s official. Sloan said that the property studding Adamesville Road would likely be sold to someone; 13 acres of that will be sold to the town for use.
